ANSWER KEY / VERDICT

The missing pin was sheltered, not sold

Jules moved the brass pin from the booth case to the locked dry-item drawer after a roof leak. It was a rule-breaking protective move, not a proven theft. Jules should return the object to the coordinator and report the leak.

ANSWER KEY / CLOCKS

Two corrections

A02 runs three minutes fast, so OPEN 18:10 and CLOSED 18:11 mean 18:07 and 18:08. B01 kiosk runs three minutes slow, so the 18:10 printed receipt is a purchase at 18:13, after the case opened. The printed alibi does not cover 18:07.

ANSWER KEY / CROSS-CHECK

Why the accounts fit

A01 places key K-1 with Jules 18:06-18:08. A03 keeps Sam on stage 18:06-18:09, two minutes away. B02 logs Jules' packet in the dry-item drawer at 18:09, labelled with the pin's distinctive triangle and pad. B03 mentions the leak and order not to touch displays; together these clues support a rule-breaking protective move.

THE RAINCHECK PIN

CASE COMPLETE

YOU SOLVED THE FREE RIVERSIDE MINI CASE

Your free case is complete. No account, payment or further material is needed to finish The Raincheck Pin. We welcome honest feedback, including early stops and disagreements.

A DIFFERENT, LONGER CASE IS NOW AVAILABLE

The Bellglass Interval is a separate English-language two-adult cooperative museum mystery. Investigator A and B receive different evidence files; the digital buyer package includes optional hints and an answer key. This is NOT a continuation of The Raincheck Pin.

EARLY ACCESS / USD $12

The paid v0.1.5 early-access edition is published on Gumroad. This edition is AI-assisted and has passed technical file checks; independent blind testing by two adult customers, actual play duration, puzzle enjoyment and completed third-party buyer delivery are not independently verified. Each case has limited replay surprise. Taxes, if applicable, may be additional.
